nah News.] Conversing with an intelli-gent gentleman from the interior, we asked him if he saw any immediate prospect of improve-ment in the condition of the farmers. He replied in substance that there was no silver lining to the cloud; that the farmers, as a general thing, after the war, went into speculationran their farms upon that principle, and having carried it to such an extent as to involve themselves in debt, saw no way of extraction, save by some lucky hit, which many of them strive desperately to make. Many, of course had lost all and been compelled to abandon the system, while a few saw their error in time to save their property. The latter, he said, ed the class of thrifty farmers who make their provisare now on safe footing. He thought a large number would not be overtaken by total ruin of their fortunes, and forced by by a dire peccesity to be a serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out not receive the large serious to be serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out Total the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in the large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old sermons preached long before men thought of getting out in large serious that I'd like to run in—old serious that I'd like to run by a dire necessity to begin again—this time at the bottom round of the ladder. In the olden time, he continued, farmers cultivated their farms for a living and made them self-susng, but now it was too much of a matter of speculation in the effort to grow suddenly rich. He thought no permanent general prosperity could grow out of such a system and one need be looked for until a change has been effected.

Hon. Thomas Hardeman says: The great danger threatrate of interest the farmers have to pay for their guano and provisions. A merchant will not lend them the money, for then he could not get 8 per cent. inhe could not get 8 per cent. in-terest. By selling them goods, however, at a heavy advance he however, at a heavy advance he gets from 30 to 40 per cent. interest. When the farmer can of badly handled papers, exget money at low interest, or ns at cost with mere interest added, they will then prosper, no matter what they plant. Of course it is better plant. Of course it is better for them to plant mixed crops— but the interest is what is eating them up.

The question then is how to get lower rates of interest. would seem to be a certainty that big crops of cotton can not effect this desirable arrangement. By parity of reasaning it would appear that factors who make advances cannot trust exclusive to cotton-planting or anything that approximates it. Perhaps they would have more confidence in farmers who raise some of their own provisions and make at least a sturdy efand make at least a sturdy effort at independence of food man's nead was smeared supplies from abroad. If the truth were known, it would be digmonstrated, we think, that canters who diversify their pops are either most favored, or else they are not in the factor's rows at all. Vesterday old Uncle Jesse Winglop, a time-honored preacher, who has preached among the hills for forty years, and who in his younger days was known as the "wheel-horse exhorter," came to town and called at the Gazette office.

"My son George," said Uncle Jesse to the political man, "has just graduated from the old Red Bluff academy, and after sauntering around among the professions, peeping into law-yer offices and poking around doctor shops, and not being satisfied, he has concluded to learn the editing business.

Presently the Queen gave the sign for them to begin their revels, and then the music struck up a most ravishing minstrelsy; the dancers commenced treading a measure with such infinite grace as hath never been visible to mortal eyes, and the rest were disporting of themselves in all parts of the meadow, laughing, jesting, feast-ing and making merry with such or driving the leaping frogs into the river with a famous hallooing and admirable cheerful noise; others of the merry elves were amusing of themselves by jumping over the toadstools that grew thereabouts and mayhap one not being so good a leaper as his fellow would jump clean into one of these dry fungous plants to the near smothering of himself in its dust and laughter.

Then some of the Sylphs who were not of the dancers were engaged in making wreaths of the delicatest blossoms in season either for those they affected of the other sex or for their ting together a true love posie. Here and there might be seen a couple apart from the rest, by the exquisite earnestness of their countenances, declaring them-selves to be employed in such delectable manner as showed there was no lack of affection-ateness betwirt them. A company of others had got in the midst of them an elf of a most jocund spirit, known to divers by the several names of Puck, Robin Goodfellow, Will o' the Wisp, who as was evident from their faces, with his droll jests and diverting tricks kept them in a constant humor of laughing. Here would be one mischievous elf running after a sylph with a huge worm which, it was evident she liked not the looks of; and there another pelting a companion with cowslips, who was making ready to fling at him with a like missile.

Now here and there were seen amongst them such abundance of passtime as was quite a marvel to behold, in the tricksy Will o' the Wisp or Puck or Robin Goodfellows as he was variously called, did ap-pear to enjoy himself to the very bent of his humor. In the neanwhile Titania and Oberon moved from the banquet and were soon pleasantly engaged, treading a measure to the delicatest music ever known. All of a sudden as they were disporting of themselves every of the young grass, unharmed by the light footfals of the tiny dancers bent to the midnight wind; the frogs came peering from the rushes and the timid water rat ventured to put her head out of the covered hole eneath the river's bank.

A young lady was once ter-ribly shocked by her own fool-ish mistake. Being sent for flour to the store, in a harry, she took what she supposed to be a clean pillow-slip from the bu-reau drawer. Then she bounded into the store, smiling like a basket of chips, she handed the thing to the storekeeper to be filled with flour. He didn't notice what they were till a scoop full of flour had gone through them. When he raised them up and displayed the two outlets at the bottom, nicely fringed, the young lady quickly "lit out," without saying a word and the storekeeper, covered with flour, laid the garment in the money drawer to await her return, which has not "eventuated" up to the present time. While on the subject of baptism, at the meeting on Sunday night, Major Penn stirred up the ire of a lady in the audience, by alluding to her denomination as "Campbellites," Where-upon she mounted a bench and proceeded to reply, by telling the preacher what a great sin-ner he was, and she would wrestle with the Lord in prayer for him that night. The Major thanked her for this proffered kindness, but, by way of a reminder, told her that St. Paul had said a woman should not speak in public. This so enraged her that she again arose and accused him of insulting her, when he assured her that he wa not the author of the sentence quoted, and did not really know whether St. Paul intended to insult her or not,-Belton Cour The Treasurer of the Illinois State Hospital paid the wages of employes in Mexican dollars which he bought at a discount The profit was $19, and the loss was a position worth $1,
